

Are competitors gobbling up your employees?

Employees are one of your company's most valuable resources. Retaining them – and preventing predators from spiriting away your best performers – is a constant challenge.

What's more, employers also have to worry about protecting their other valuable assets – including intellectual property, trade secrets, or sales territories – that may leave the nest with such workers.

If you're facing such a situation, consider calling out for help. Whether it's seeking enforcement of non-compete agreements, prosecuting misappropriation of trade secrets, conducting internal investigations, updating handbooks – or if you're already facing workplace litigation – our team of employment law attorneys is available to address your needs.
